Bill Christie of Orleans and his three-year-old daughter Eva May sat back and watched as firefighters simulated a vehicle extrication on Sunday afternoon at the Cumberland Heritage Village Museum.

It was one of many events across the city linked to Doors Open Ottawa — an annual celebration of Ottawa's heritage.

"I wanted her to see the firefighters doing what they do best," Christie said of his daughter. "It really shows how skilled these guys are and how important they are to the city."

Denis Demers, a firefighter who volunteered his time on Sunday afternoon, said he hoped the demonstration raised awareness about what they do on a day-to-day basis.

"It's important for the community to see what we do," said Demers. "And to create awareness and pride in our village."

The event, now in its 11th year, opened up 124 buildings across the city, from movie theatres to the Royal Canadian Mint.

Staff at the Mayfair Theatre on Bank Street were delighted with the long lineup of people interested in a behind-the-scenes look at their projection room.

"A lot of people unexpectedly came and just started sharing stories about when they were younger and going to the movies," said Carolyn Quinn, member of the Doors Open Advisory Council.

"The staff was very interested in capturing that."

About 80,000 people participated in the event last year. When asked this weekend, Quinn said he expected a similar turnout for 2013.

"People were lining up to see sites and sharing advice about what to visit," Quinn added. "It's wonderful to see residents of Ottawa exploring their own city."

Police on hunt for suspect in armed robberies

Gatineau police are asking for the public's help tracking down an armed-robbery suspect who is connected to three holdups in May.

Antony Parker, 22, is six feet tall, weighs 175 to 200 pounds, and has brown eyes and brown hair. He drives a black 1998 Lincoln Navigator with an Ontario licence plate BRRE 222.

Parker speaks English and is seen regularly in Ottawa and Gatineau.

Police advise anyone who comes into contact with Parker to call 911 immediately.

Anyone with information is asked to call Gatineau police at 819-246-0222.

Investigation ongoing in home fire

Ottawa Fire Services continues to investigate the cause of a two-alarm blaze that has left two residents displaced.

On Friday night, multiple 911 calls came pouring in just after 7 p.m. for a structure fire at 128 McLeod St.

The blaze started on the roof of the two-and-a-half-storey brick home, Ottawa Fire spokesperson Marc Messier said.

There were no injuries and damage is estimated at about $200,000.

Ornge crash. Cockpit recorder to be studied

Investigators have recovered the cockpit voice recorder of an Ontario air-ambulance helicopter that crashed in the province's north, killing all four people onboard.

Transportation Safety Board spokesman Chris Krepski says the recorder will be sent to the agency's Ottawa lab for analysis in the hope it will shed light on the cause of Friday's crash.

He says a team of four investigators at the crash scene in Moosonee have determined the aircraft had a "high-energy impact" crash and are interviewing potential witnesses and air-ambulance officials.

The dead crew members included two pilots and two paramedics. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Pair sent to hospital. ATV collides with gate

Two people were taken to hospital early Sunday after an ATV crash on a trail near Anderson Road.

Ottawa paramedics say a 26-year-old man and a 29-year-old woman crashed their ATV into a heavy aluminium gate at the end of a dark trail. Both were thrown a considerable distance.

The woman, who wasn't wearing a helmet, suffered multi-system trauma including head, torso and extremity injuries, paramedics say. She was taken to hospital in serious condition.

The man, who was wearing a helmet, suffered comparatively minor injuries and was listed as stable upon arrival at the Ottawa Hospital. Police are investigating. METRO

Family grapples with emotions after arrest

Murder investigation. Birth of daughter said to have softened Levy Kasende, who was fatally shot last year

After an arrest in the murder case of Levy Kasende Thursday, the family of his now one-year-old daughter say they're left with anger tinged with sadness.

Michael Belleus, 24, appeared in court Friday morning via video on a charge of first-degree murder related to Kasende's shooting death on Aug. 25, 2012.

"Seeing him, I felt anger," said Louris Labib, the grandmother of Kasende's daughter, Jayla-Marie, after the appearance.

Belleus's lawyer, Bob Carew, said his client was the only one charged following the arrest of five people in connection to the case

Thursday. Three others were released unconditionally, said Det. Darren Vinet of the Ottawa Police Service's major crimes unit. One other was held on weapons charges in another matter.

Two suspects were seen fleeing the scene of the shooting in a Mazda MPV minivan, which was later found torched near Vars, Ont.

"A case is never over. It doesn't just stop when there's an arrest made," Vinet said.

While Kasende had a rough-and-tumble image, Labib said he was softened by the birth of his daughter.

"The sad part is that when he passed away, she was four months," Labib said.

"He never got to hear her call him 'da-da.' That was her first word. He didn't get to see her walk, he didn't get to see her first tooth. ... She is the true victim in all of this."

Belleus will appear in court again on June 7.

Tax 'amendment' will cost insurers $1 billion

GST bonanza. Owed amounts date back to a 2005 Finance Department release implemented in 2010

Canada's insurance industry faces a $1-billion GST bill at the end of this month, thanks to a federal tax move critics say smacks of a "banana republic."

The massive tax hit applies to some financial services that insurers say were never before subject to GST.

The GST now owed is retroactive seven years, back to 2005, when the federal Finance Department issued a news release saying it planned to amend tax legislation — something it didn't get around to implementing until 2010.

Critics say that apart from the body blow to the books of domestic insurers, the "massively distortive" tax grab sends a signal to global investors that Canada is no place to do business. That message, they say, challenges any claim the Harper government is a tax-cutter and a good steward of the economy.

Finance Minister Jim Flaherty with Prime Minister Stephen Harper in March. A massive retroactive GST ruling from the Finance Department has investors fuming. THE CANADIAN PRESS

"I have lost count of the number of times that global tax directors have used the words 'banana republic' when I describe this legislation to them," says Michael Firth, a tax partner at PricewaterhouseCoopers Canada, and chief among the critics.

"They don't believe it. They go, 'You're kidding me? Can they really do this?'"

For its part, the Finance Department says it hasn't changed GST legislation at all, but rather clarified rules that were poorly drafted when the GST was born in 1991.

The slow-motion train wreck began with an obscure Tax Court of Canada ruling in 2003, in which the judge sided with insurer State Farm against the Canada Revenue Agency.

The company successfully argued the GST does not apply to certain common financial transactions, and therefore it owed no money to the taxman.

The Finance Department issued a statement and background document on Nov. 17, 2005, saying it planned to amend GST legislation to effectively overturn the judge's ruling, warning the amendments would be retroactive to the date of the release.

Controversial draft legislation appeared Jan. 26, 2007, and the measure was finally passed in an omnibus budget bill in 2010, whacking certain kinds of financial services with GST retroactively.

Veterans. Former soldiers worry wounded military survivors will be forgotten

In 2010, former corporal John Lowe finished his tour in the killing fields of Kandahar.

His generation of soldiers has a myriad of money and recovery programs, but checking yourself into one is known within the ranks as "spin dry."

It can be the kiss of career death for a soldier to put their hands up and say they have a problem with the horrors they've witnessed.

"It's the culture; the culture is totally different," said Lowe. "One of our mottos is suffer in silence. That's what's honourable. That's what we're taught."

Lowe came home alone, a month ahead of his buddies in Charlie Company, 1st Battalion Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry.

Lowe is part of a group of Canadian soldiers and veterans, many of them struggling with post-traumatic stress, who arrived in London Sunday after a gruelling six-day cycling ride from Paris.

They took part in an event put on by the British-based charity Help for Heroes, which gathered 300 riders from the United Kingdom, Canada and the U.S., including a number of amputees who lost limbs in Afghanistan and Iraq.

The Harper government takes great pride in saying it has poured an additional $130 million into improving the system of military medical care since being elected, including an often-trumpeted $11.4 million for mental health.

But according to accounts from soldiers past and present, it is still a system of stifling bureaucracy, occasional leadership indifference, but most of all, prejudice.

Dave Penasse, a former armoured vehicle driver who served in Bosnia, says he's concerned that as the war in Afghanistan becomes a distant memory for the public, people will forget about the 2,047 who were wounded physically and mentally.

"It is sad to think about, but if a country is not a war, there's less media attention (on the military), less and less and less, and then there's none," he said. "People forget so easily what these people have been through."

Pistorius trial. Athlete's family 'shaken' by alleged crime-scene photos

Oscar Pistorius' family said Sunday it was "shaken" by the "graphic" leaked images broadcast by a British television station that purport to show the bloodied bathroom where the Olympian fatally shot his girlfriend on Valentine's Day.

In a brief statement two days before the double-amputee athlete is due back in court for a hearing ahead of his murder trial, the Pistorius family said the images shown by Sky News on Friday did not help the legal process.

"We were shaken by the graphic images, leaked into the public domain this week, of the accident scene at Oscar's house," the family said, appearing to confirm they are from Pistorius' home. "It has always been our plea that the legal process be allowed to run its course with integrity. The leaking of evidential material into the public domain before the court case does not advance this process."

The images have not been verified by The Associated Press or South African police.

Pistorius is charged with premeditated murder for the Feb. 14 death of Reeva Steenkamp. He denies the charge, saying he shot the 29-year-old model by mistake thinking she was an intruder.

"As a family we fully stand behind Oscar as he prepares to appear in court this Tuesday," the statement said. "We believe in him, love him and will support him every step of the way in what lies ahead."

Pistorius is due in court Tuesday for a hearing ahead of his murder trial.

Storm-chasing legend killed in Friday twister

Saskatchewan tornado

this storm pattern was
'unprecedented'

MORGAN
MODJESKI
Metro in Saskatoon

Three of North America's best-known storm chasers were among 10 killed after a tornado hit the El Reno area of Oklahoma City during rush hour on Friday.

Tim Samaras, called the Wayne Gretzky of storm chasing, his son Paul Samaras and storm chaser Carl Young were all killed when an EF3 tornado, with winds up to 265 km/h, barrelled into the area.

Saskatchewan tornado

hunter Greg Johnson was chasing the same tornado that killed the three men.

"Is it dangerous? It sure is. We're putting ourselves into the danger zone, but the thing is, we have very sophisticated technology and we have a really good understanding of how storms behave, so this is a very rare incidence," said Johnson.

Johnson said the tornado made a 90-degree left turn and headed north in a pattern that he called "almost unprecedented."

"We got caught in the same storm and we were basically in a different location, but in the same situation as Tim," said Johnson.

He said Tim Samaras was one of the best storm chasers in the field, adding he had a chance to visit with Tim and his team two weeks ago in Texas.

Mayors in Bruce County held secret nuclear-waste talks: Activists

Municipal leaders in the Ontario region that is home to one of the world's largest nuclear power plants are facing allegations they discussed proposed storage facilities for radioactive waste in secret because they feared damaging their electoral fortunes.

In a formal complaint to Bruce County, two activist groups also say the mayors may have violated provincial laws by failing to document and publicize years of meetings with nuclear-waste officials.

Those involved say nothing untoward occurred but the Southampton Residents Association and Save our Saugeen Shores see skullduggery in the highly charged search for a permanent storage site.

Documents show the eight county mayors met 16 times with the Nuclear Waste Management Organization and Ontario Power Generation between 2005 and 2012 to discuss a proposed underground facility for low- and mid-level radioactive waste.

"The lack of transparency in reporting and timing of the release of information ... demonstrate a mission to keep Bruce County constituents uninformed during crucial decision-making processes," said the complaint of the two groups that was sent to the county.

In early 2009, discussions also turned to finding a willing host community for high-level radioactive waste. The mayors "favoured a soft or low-key launch" of the search process, according to the OPG notes.

Ebook price-fixing. Apple, U.S. Justice Department to square off in antitrust case

In a civil case where the words of Steve Jobs play prominently, the U.S. government and Apple Inc. are set to square off over allegations that Apple conspired with the country's largest book publishers to make consumers pay more for electronic books.

U.S. District Judge Denise Cote is scheduled to begin hearing the price-fixing case Monday in federal court in Manhattan. The trial stems from an antitrust lawsuit brought last year by the Justice Department, which accused Apple of helping hatch the scheme at a meeting with publishers in 2009 as it was preparing to launch the iPad.

Its purpose was to force Seattle-based Amazon.com, the marketer of Kindle ebook readers, to raise the $9.99 US price it had set for the most popular ebook titles because that was substantially below their hardcover prices, the government says.

The government has alleged the scheme cost consumers tens of millions of dollars, and argues that part of the proof is Jobs' own account of the arrangement. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Want a coffee and a smoke? Not at Starbucks

Starbucks customers will now have to stamp out their cigarettes before approaching the cafés.

The Seattle-based chain has banned smoking within 25 feet (7.6 metres) of its stores. A Starbucks spokeswoman says the intent is to expand the indoor no-smoking policy to the outdoor seating areas.

The policy shouldn't cause a big difference in many areas that already ban smoking within a certain distance of a business entrance. The rule will apply to Starbucks' 7,000 cafés regardless of whether they have outdoor seating areas. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

THIS IS HOW YOU HANDLE SCANDAL

Despite the absence of crack allegations or five-figure cheques, Coun. Peter Clark's bout of bad press last week, involving (in order of decreasing proximity) booze, strippers and hookers, still could have easily metastasized like the bigger controversies currently dogging other politicians.

Nobody's suggesting the Rideau-Rockcliffe councillor had a particularly good week after he was revealed to have blown a warning on a roadside sobriety test on the way home from the Playmate on May 7. He got a three-day licence suspension and he paid a $150 fee.

But instead of a protracted media feeding frenzy, Clark's ordeal was a two-day wonder, and this may well be the last article you read about it — if you're even still curious.

One of the important differences between this misadventure and the others making life miserable for certain denizens of Parliament Hill and Toronto City Hall is how Clark handled himself.

URBAN COMPASS
Steve Collins

ottawa@metronews.ca

While hardly volunteering the news of his licence suspension before the police report leaked to the press (and how eagerly would anyone bring that up?) once the story was out, Clark took his lumps, answered press inquiries and apologized to his colleagues and constituents for the mess.

To screw up is human; to admit it is rarer than it should be.

There's a structural difference at city hall, too. Our councillors are accustomed to speaking for themselves, in their own voices, rather than through spokespeople. Unlike the holders of more exalted public offices, Clark didn't attack the "lickspittles" and "maggots" of the media for doing their job of asking questions whether or not he felt like answering them.

Instead of stonewalling and leaving a vacuum in which speculation could thrive, he offered prompt and detailed answers.

On the question of whether he tried to use his position to intimidate the police, an allegation he denies, he can quite reasonably be accorded the benefit of the doubt.

He also addressed police suspicions that he slowed his vehicle near some prostitutes.

"He said he pulled me over because he thought I was trying to pick up a hooker," he told Metro's Alex Boutilier. "Well, No. 1, I didn't stop. I didn't open the window, I didn't wave at anybody. I don't know where he got that impression."

He told the CBC he's been to the Playmate a few times but won't be found "mauling" the dancers. (Yikes, councillor. I don't believe anybody asked, but thanks for the assurance.)

By laying it all out there, he left the scandal with nowhere to go. A day later, the only live thread of the story was who leaked the report to the media.

People with more delicate sensibilities than mine may be genuinely offended that Clark was in a strip club, period. Certainly nobody's congratulating him for getting behind the wheel a drink or two short of an even bigger mistake.

But political life could use a lot more of the forthrightness and accountability Clark displayed last week and a lot less of the evasion, spin and silence that seem to have become standard operating procedure in some higher public offices.

What plagues the puffin?

East coast seabirds dying of starvation

This Atlantic puffin is seen with a beak crammed with fish to feed its young, but the population is at risk in the Gulf of Maine. The comical-looking seabirds have been dying of starvation and losing body weight, possibly because of shifting fish populations as ocean temperatures rise, according to scientists.

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Butterfish too fat to feed to the kids

Instead of feeding their young primarily herring, puffin parents were giving them large numbers of butterfish, a more southerly fish that's becoming more abundant in the Gulf or perhaps more accessible to seabirds because they've moved higher up in the water column.

But the chicks ended up starving to death because the butterfish were too big and round for them to swallow says Steve Kress, director of the National Audubon Society's seabird restoration program. Piles of uneaten butterfish were found next to some of the dead birds.

The amount of herring in the puffin's diet has been falling by about five per cent a year. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

RE: Whiny Airplane Travellers Can Go Fly a Kite, published May 29

In John Mazerolle's column He Says, he talks about how whiny people can be on airplanes and how annoying it can be.

He goes on to say he loves flying.

I know some people are annoying needlessly, but there are some people like me who hate flying due to mental illness.

We folks suffer severe anxiety and it can be quite uncomfortable at times. I don't say anything out loud and bother people, I just suffer in silence.

I have two sisters who live out West and so I have to fly to see them and it's something that can be very stressful.

I realize he's trying to be funny, but for some of us it's not a laughing matter.

It seems as though he wasn't thinking about people like me when he wrote that, and I am offended enough to write to you about it.

Will and Jaden Smith teaming up for After Earth has us thinking of other real-life parent-child movies

MATTHEW PRIGGE
Metro World News in New York

Will and Jaden Smith aren't the first parent-offspring duo to team up on the silver screen. HANDOUT

Box office

After Earth, the futuristic caper starring father-and-son team Will Smith and Jaden Smith, opened to $27 million, good for third place. With its super-charged muscle cars, Fast & Furious 6 raced to first place at the box office for the second consecutive weekend. The magic-heist thriller Now You See Me exceeded industry expectations to debut in second place with $28.1 million.

The actors, films

Melvin and Mario Van Peebles

Sweet Sweetback's Baadasssss Song (1971)

Their ages

39, 14

Their roles

Melvin plays an entertainer at a brothel falsely accused by "The Man." Mario plays his younger self in a fairly graphic introductory scene where he loses his virginity to a prostitute. Thanks, dad!

The results

Even though what was shot very nearly qualifies as child pornography, it apparently wasn't traumatic. Mario grew up idolizing and often working with his father. He became a filmmaker himself, making New Jack City and Baadasssss! — an account of the making of his father's pioneering black cinema classic. Mario even stars as his wildly charismatic, cigar-chomping, lady-killer pop.

Ryan and Tatum O'Neal

Paper Moon (1973)

32, 10

Ryan is a charismatic con man in the Depression-era South who collects fraudulent fees from rubes for bibles. Tatum plays a little girl who may be his daughter. She proves a grifting prodigy.

Ryan, often a wooden rent-a-hunk, was atypically alive and hilarious in this Peter Bogdanovich comedy. Ditto, for that matter, Tatum, who became the youngest-ever Oscar winner. She did The Bad News Bears but struggled through an adult career. Ryan, meanwhile, did two more films of major note (Barry Lyndon and The Driver), but soon returned to crap films. Their relationship became strained. Tatum alleged that Ryan hit on her at Farah Fawcett's funeral.

Henry and Jane Fonda

On Golden Pond (1981)

76, 44

Henry is a crotchety, terminally sweary old-timer who is estranged from his daughter, played by Jane. This isn't that far from the truth, except that Henry wasn't married to Katharine Hepburn.

The two were famously estranged, despite him being, like her, a liberal — back when such a thing wasn't cool. The film helped them patch things up, just as what happens in the film. Henry died soon after winning his first Oscar, which Jane accepted on his behalf.

Martin and Charlie Sheen

Wall Street (1987)

47, 22

Charlie is an upstart who gets associated with the wrong scene, while his father scowls. They also acted in this movie together.

The two would reunite, for about 10 seconds, in Hot Shots Part Deux, in a scene that parodies Apocalypse Now: Passing by each other on ships, they simultaneously stand and proclaim, "Loved you in Wall Street!"

Sylvester and Sage Stallone

Rocky V (1990)

44, 14

Sly is a slow mumblemouth who solved the Cold War, but is still stuck penniless in a miserable South Philly neighbourhood because his brother-in-law Paulie is an idiot. Sage is his resentful son who gets an earring.

Sage took over the role of Rocky Jr. from someone actually named Rocky Krakoff. He didn't get great reviews, but neither did the film. Still, he acted again with his dad in Daylight, and appears in Vincent Gallo's Promises Written in Water, which Gallo won't let anyone see. Last year, Sage died of a heart attack at 36 years old.

Jon Voight and Angelina Jolie

Lara Croft: Tomb Raider (2001)

63, 26

Jolie is a buxom archaeologist who does all the things that Indiana Jones can't, like have breasts. Voight is her dead father who she meets in an alternate dimension.

Jolie and Voight have had a bumpy relationship. They reconnected as her career exploded, then "broke up" again, then came back together after her mother's death. Still, Voight said he found out about her double mastectomy with everyone else.

Malene Arpe

Jason Statham is eating nothing but rice and spinach in order to get in shape for a role. The part is that of a miserable dieter driven to a life of crime and violence and ultimately finding redemption after accidentally consuming eight Mars Bars.

Justin Bieber is again investigated for reckless driving. It was all a giant misunderstanding. His pants got tangled in the steering wheel and his ego got tangled with his perception of reality.

Amanda Bynes Twitter-feuds with Rihanna while Frances Bean Cobain Twitter-feuds with Kendall Jenner and Kelly Osbourne rekindles her old feud with Lady Gaga in a Cosmopolitan interview. Next week, just to keep things interesting, Rihanna will go after Kendall on Instagram while Gaga hits Amanda over the head with a rolled up magazine.

Australian prime minister Julia Gillard says that she's a huge fan of Game Of Thrones and especially of House Targaryan. Interesting.

A Danish fan slaps Beyoncé's backside at a concert in Copenhagen. She got all upset and threatened to have him removed, clearly not realizing it was national sangerindesmækkedag.

Jimmy Kimmel says that he did not buy a $1.9 million painting of a topless Bea Arthur. In unrelated news, Kanye West didn't buy the moon, Tom Cruise didn't buy 100 cars and Justin Bieber, most emphatically, didn't buy a pair of grown-up pants.

Breaking Bad's Aaron Paul got married. He fumbled a bit with "until meth do us part," but otherwise it was a lovely ceremony.

Leonardo DiCaprio is dating a Victoria's Secret model. This would be his fourth Victoria's Secret girlfriend. Perhaps it's time to try Land's End or L.L. Bean.

Beyoncé drinks to her non-existent pregnancy

Beyoncé certainly knows how to deal with those pesky pregnancy rumours: The singer, who has been plagued with speculation she's expecting for the past month, posted a photo to her Tumblr blog from her recent visit to Germany showing her perched in husband Jay-Z's lap sipping a glass of red wine. While it's not an out-and-out denial, the message seems to be clear. This comes on the heels of Jay-Z saying in a radio interview that rumours of Beyoncé's pregnancy are "simply not true."

Oscar-winning actor Philip Seymour Hoffman quietly completed a 10-day stint in rehab late last week to address a reported growing drug problem that topped out with the actor allegedly snorting heroin, according to E! Re-use plastic pill container as sunscreen bottle

We all know it's important to re-apply sunscreen, but carrying around a whole, full-sized bottle of sunscreen can be cumbersome. Lighten up your load with this simple tip: Re-use a plastic pill container as a smaller sunscreen bottle. Wash the pill bottle and fill it with sunscreen—it's the perfect size to use on the go and handy if you carry different sorts of sunscreen. It's that easy and it's great for camp, cottage, or taking to the beach. CAROLINE FERNANDEZ/YUMMYMUMMYCLUB.CA

Works a charm

Use the toy trick when travelling with a crying baby

When travelling with your infant who screams because he or she hates the car, make sure you have a pile of soft toys stacked up beside you on the passenger seat. At red lights or stop signs you can reach your arm back, and drop a new soft toy on his or her lap (or head — it's hard to have good aim, that's why they're soft.) This will distract your baby long enough for you to drop another new toy at the next stop sign or red light. It's like magic, I swear. JEN WARMAN/YUMMYMUMMYCLUB.CA

Her body is her body, and it's meant to dance, not quit

Staggering statistic.

Six out of 10 girls avoid activities because they don't like their bodies. We as parents must help to lower that number

yummyummyclub.ca

I took ballet for 10 years. From the time I was two years old until I was 12, I spent several days a week perfecting my pliés and pirouettes and arabesques and revoltades.

I might have even been good, too, but I'll never know. Because I quit.

Because I was a stupid pre-teenager. It was too hard, too time-consuming. And there was a little not-allowed-to-wear-underpants-underneath-the-leotard situation.

But mostly, I quit because of my body. At age 12, my body began changing — it was too large in some places and too small in other places. I was, like many girls are before they grow into their women-bodies, the bodies that will one day grow their babies — a wee bit awkward. Apparently, and unfortunately, I'm not alone in this. Six out of 10 girls avoid activities because they feel badly about the way they look.

Ballerinas of the future need positive role models at home. ISTOCK

When my oldest daughter was born and I heard that lovely "It's a girl!" announcement, the first thing I said was, "God, I can't wait to put her in a tutu." And I stayed true to my word. She was in a tutu almost before she could speak.

At 12, she is my mini me.

She looks almost exactly like me; she's built almost exactly like me. Once, just once, we had the conversation I worried about the minute I became the mama to a daughter:

"Mama, I hate my body."

"What?"

"My friends are all so tall and thin. I am short and stout, like the little teapot."

"We are all built differently, my love. You are the perfect you that you can be."

"Hrm. I don't know if you are right."

"Do you exercise?"

"Of course. I bike and swim and dance and play basketball and walk to and from school and jump on the trampoline and I'm thinking of trying out for track and field."

"Do you eat a lot of foods that are good for you?"

"Of course. I love peppers and broccoli and green beans and artichokes and asparagus."

"Then that is all that matters. If you treat your body the way it should be treated, your body will grow into what it should be — a perfect woman."

I don't want her to quit like I did. She's so good. Six out of 10 girls avoiding activities. Six out of 10! I don't want my daughter to be one of the six. Research shows, though, that when girls have positive role models at home — often mom — they tend to be less likely to let their anxieties get the better of them. Her body does amazing things — she can pop and lock and shake and shimmy and whatever those young kids are doing these days. And there are moments when she's on that dance floor, and I'm sure that she's flying.

I want her to know that bodies come in all shapes and sizes. It's my job as her mother to remind her of this and to not make the same mistakes that kept me from pursuing something I loved, something I could have been amazing at.

Her body is her body, and it's a body that's meant to dance. To fly. To be celebrated. To wear a tutu if she wants.

Not to quit.

10 sure-fire ways to know you're a parent

This list is here for clarity, because I'm assuming a lot of you were wondering this very question: "Am I? Am I really a parent?"

10) You've spat on your finger to wipe food/dirt/poo off of your child's face.

9) You've had saliva, urine, and feces sprayed/mashed/smear on you at some point or another.

8) At any moment, you could cry. You never know when, but it could happen. Like. Right. Now. "They're so beautiful."

7) At any moment, you could rage. Like. Right. Now.

6) In your WORK bag, you find the strangest stuff: a soother, a crushed juice box, half a crayon, a lid to something, a doll, a mini truck, a sandwich crust, rocks from the garden...

5) You see danger around every corner. And if it's a sharp corner — you pad it.

4) You do shit you never thought you'd do, and think,

"I'm sorry for judging you other parent that I judged that one time..." (and let's be honest, it was more than just one time). You now have that kid.

3) You have 1,756 photos on your phone and 1,752 of them are of your child/children

2) Your dog (a.k.a your first baby) is terribly neglected: he needs a haircut, probably has fleas and only gets fed if you remember.

1) And the number one way you can tell that you're a parent? Your heart always aches with a love so heavy that you finally understand why parents do the crazy things they do for their children.

What's black and sugary and delicious all over? Rice pudding

Judith Finlayson professes a love for the taste and texture of rice, whether it's brown, red or Thai black sticky rice.

Though the cookbook author hasn't been able to duplicate a sweet concoction of mangoes and sticky rice she sampled while travelling in Thailand, this recipe for black sticky rice pudding is one of her favourites and she has included it in her most recent cookbook, The Complete Gluten-Free Whole Grains Cookbook.

"It is so easy and so good."

Thai black sticky rice is available in Asian markets. If desired, you can cook the rice in your rice cooker on the brown rice setting. The recipe calls for mangoes, but other fruits like strawberries, kiwifruit or peaches are also tasty.

This dessert is suitable for those following a vegan food plan.

Ingredients

Makes 6 servings

375 ml (1 1/2 cups) water
175 ml (3/4 cup) cooked Thai black sticky rice
1 can (400 ml/14 oz) coconut milk
125 ml (1/2 cup) packed Demerara or other raw cane sugar
2 ml (1/2 tsp) salt
250 ml (1 cup) sliced strawberries or kiwifruit or chopped peaches or mango
50 ml (1/4 cup) toasted shredded sweetened coconut
Finely chopped mint (optional)

Secrets the staff ain't gonna spill

No tips from our lips. Look beyond the job description to discover what characteristics are going to set you apart from the crowd

YLVA

CareerBear.com

If you're in the midst of a job search, you know it's important to study every job description to understand what the position requires — and how your skills and experience tie in.

But there are also certain characteristics that are valuable to organizations that you won't ever see in a job description, says Stefan Danis, CEO of Mandrake and NEXCareer.

"What you bring to a job really goes beyond your experience and skills. Organizations today are also looking for an attitude to align with or lift their culture. Those extras are often what make one person more hireable than another."

Here's the list that HR won't share:

Character

Minimal drama

- Personal and work lives are more intertwined than ever due to technology and the fact that more people work occasionally from home.
- "So while more work is done from home, organizations are usually not tolerant when someone brings 'home' issues to the office." Drama, intrigue and in-fighting are office staples — don't get involved, says Danis. Your boss won't tolerate office opera either.

A lot of people meet the job requirements but the most valuable employee doesn't settle for meeting expectations, says Stefan Danis — he or she exceeds them. ISTOCK at the end of the day employees want to know that you'll make the right decision for

If the company is about growing into a long-term, sustainable business, they want someone with a longer time horizon who won't cut corners. To see if you have the character the company is looking for, the interviewer might ask questions about facing difficult decisions and how you chose to handle them. "They're looking at your moral compass, integrity and follow through."

Positivity

"We all have stories about someone with a negative attitude. I believe more organizations are trying to scan for that. Positivity is not a necessity to do your job, but negativity is toxic to the work environment," Danis says. Valued employees project a happy disposition and a glass-half-full attitude.

Adaptable

Organizations today need people who are resilient and able to change as the company changes direction. "People who resent and resist change are literally a drag on an organization," Danis says. For example, if a company has to suddenly cut costs or lay off staff, "someone who can renew their vows to the organization's new direction almost immediately is very valuable."

Industrious

While companies promise mentoring and training, staff shortages or busy work schedules often result in new employees being left to figure things out on their own. "Let people know that while you value mentoring you acknowledge that it is sometimes difficult for people to follow through on doing it. A valued employee resists blaming the organization; instead, that person figures things out by quickly building an internal support network," Danis says.

Dependable

"Having the discipline to follow through is so important. When asked to do something, a valuable employee never lets you down." You can prove this with examples that show how you successfully completed a variety of often-conflicting assignments on time and on budget.

Job focused

Organizations want employees who do what they are paid to do. Surfing the web has taken over as the number one time waster in the office, says Danis. "It is killing productivity. Turn Facebook off and resist visiting LinkedIn and your stock picks. That should all be done at home."

Keeping the bugs out of your business

Stay healthy during the hustle. You can't let the sneezes slow you down when there is so much to do

JULIA WEST
Metro World News

You may claim that your job — or your boss — is killing you, and the truth is, it could actually be harming you. Poor lunch decisions when you're on the go, uncomfortable chairs and germ-y work stations might be taking a toll on your immune system. With a few thoughtful workplace changes, though, you can make your office a place of health and not harm. (Unfortunately, we can't help you with your boss.)

If you work in an office, you probably spend the majority of your day at your desk. Make sure it isn't a breeding ground

Put the "work" in workout

Find ways to sneak a little exercise into your workday

- Get your blood flowing with a few lunges or heel lifts at your work station.
- If you're shy about the desk workout routine, burn calories more discreetly by parking farther away from the building, or opting for the stairs rather than the elevator.
- Or just go for a walk during your lunch break.

for bacteria.

"Sanitize your workspace," suggests life coach Stacia Pierce of Ultimate Lifestyle Enterprises.

"Keep disinfectant wipes near to wipe down your mouse, keyboard and phone."

Pierce also suggests getting fresh air by eating lunch outside whenever possible. Kathy Gruver, a health and wellness practitioner, agrees. "Get outside for fresh air and sunlight, which can help that after lunch feeling of sleepiness," says Gruver. "Add in exercise and stretching throughout the day. We are still when waiting for things to load, fax, and copy. This is the perfect time to stretch and move the body."

You might be surprised which careers offer the healthiest lifestyles. According to Leslie Caccamese, director of strategic marketing and research at Great Place to Work, grocery clerks are often in good shape.

"At Whole Foods, team members are educated on healthy eating so they can share that information with their customers," says Caccamese.

"Team members also get an extra discount at Whole Foods stores for maintaining healthy biometric standards."

Don't just expect the nighttime crew to wipe away all the germs from the day. Bring along your own cleanup kit. ISTOCK

Of jitters and genders. Who is more prone to panic at a job interview?

Are you as tough as nails or does interview anxiety often get the best of you? ISTOCK

Coming down with a case of the jitters during a job interview is hardly surprising, but is anxiety experienced in these high-pressure settings greater for men or women?

A University of Guelph study found there was no difference between males and females when it came to self-reported and interviewer-rated anxiety. However, there was a gender divide when it came to interview performance — and males were affected more.

PhD candidate Amanda Feiler first started ruminating on the subject of interview anxiety while working on her master's thesis, which was around the time of the recession. She recalled thinking of those who would be losing their jobs and the pressures they'd be facing in subsequent interviews.

"One of the big questions that we had with my thesis was in terms of gender differences with interview anxiety," Feiler, 27, said in a phone interview. "Do men experience more anxiety than women, or is it vice versa? And is the effect worse for men than it is for women?"

As it turns out, it's a bit of both, according to a study

We know you're nervous

Both Feiler and Powell said there may also be the possibility of sex stereotyping where interviewers are expecting males to be more assertive and confident.

- Powell said it's key for individuals to remember the interview process is a social interaction where interviewers will expect some anxiety, and that apprehension levels may not be as noticeable as candidates perceive them to be.

co-authored by Feiler and Deborah Powell, an assistant professor in the psychology department at the University of Guelph.

Researchers recruited 125 participants — 43 males and 82 females — aged between 18 and 22, who were undergraduate co-op students.

As part of their course credit, they were required to take part in mock interviews for a position within one of 15 organizations where they were interested in submitting applications, and were assigned an interviewer employed by the campus career centre.

The interviews were recorded and included both unstructured and semi-structured behavioural questions, starting from the general "tell me a little about yourself"-type queries to the more specific, such as how they resolved a situation with an angry customer.

Both the interviewers and interviewees were asked to rate the anxiety levels of candidates.

"What we actually found is that there were no gender differences between men and women in terms of their self-reported and interviewer-reported anxiety, but that men suffered greater impairments in terms of interview performance than anxious females did," Feiler said.

Powell said they originally wanted to see the correlation between how people rated their own anxiety and how interviewers rated their anxiety, in addition to how anxiety affected a candidate's performance.

Kuchar wins 2nd title of the year

Matt Kuchar rolled in one last birdie to win the Memorial by two shots and join Tiger Woods as the only multiple winners on the PGA Tour this year.

Kuchar was challenged briefly at the turn by Kyle Stanley, and then late Sunday when Kevin Chappell birdied three of his last four holes. Kuchar only needed to two-putt from 20 feet for the win, and he made the putt for a 4-under 68.

Kuchar captured the Match Play Championship in February.

Tiger Woods closed with a 72 and finished 20 shots behind, his largest deficit since 1996.

Stewart back on winning track

Tony Stewart made a late outside pass on Juan Pablo Montoya and held on Sunday at Dover International Speedway to snap a 30-race winless streak.

Stewart hadn't even had a top-five finish this season and was stuck in 20th in the points standings. He took the lead with the pass with three laps left in the 400-mile race.

Stewart hadn't won on the concrete mile track since he swept both Cup races in 2000.

Seven-time Dover winner Jimmie Johnson appeared to have the car to beat, but jumped a restart and had to serve a pass-through penalty.

Jeff Gordon was third, followed by Kyle Busch and Brad Keselowski.

Red, white and blues: Canada foiled again

The Rematch. Morgan leads U.S. over northern neighbours in first meeting since Olympics

In the game billed as "The Rematch," American star Alex Morgan played the role of villain once again.

Canada's heartbreaking 4-3 loss to the U.S. in the Olympic semifinals, and the Canadians' first game back home since they won bronze in London.

Sydney Leroux, a Canadian-born striker who plays for the U.S., drew boos from the crowd when she kissed the badge on her jersey after scoring the Americans' third goal.

Morgan, whose goal in the 123rd minute in that memorable Olympic semi sealed the U.S. victory, scored her first Sunday in the 70th when she cut inside defender Emily Zurrer, firing from the top-left corner of the 18-yard box and slotting it past goalkeeper Erin McLeod into the right corner of the net. Morgan's second goal came two minutes later from the same spot.

Leroux scored seconds before the final minute when she ran in on a breakaway, placing the ball past McLeod.

The so-called friendly was anything but for the two teams, who had battled goal-for-goal in last summer's Olympic match that will go down as one of the most memorable games in Canadian soccer history.

Canada's captain Christine Sinclair recorded a hat trick in that match that turned on a controversial free kick. Referee Christina Pedersen awarded the kick to the Americans in front of Canada's net, claiming McLeod took longer than the allowable six seconds to put the ball back into play.

Penguins look to regain their cool in Game 2

There's a dry erase board in the Pittsburgh Penguins' dressing room coach Dan Bylsma uses to remind his players about where they stand in their bid for a Stanley Cup.

For the first time this post-season, the Penguins find themselves with a bagel next to their name after the Boston Bruins pulled away for a 3-0 victory in Game 1 on Sunday night.

"It's a different look," Bylsma said.

One that will only certainly get worse if Pittsburgh can't collect itself in Game 2 on Mon-

Quoted

"They're players who have character, and I don't even need to say they're excellent players."

The Bruins' Patrice Bergeron doesn't expect the Penguins to be so easily rattled in Game 2 day night.

The Bruins rode David Krecji's two goals, Tuukka Rask's 29 saves and a hefty amount of antagonism to frustrate the Penguins into the kind of chippy play that does little favours to one of the NHL's most talented teams.

For a spell in the second period, the Penguins seemed more intent in sending a message than evening the score.

Forward Matt Cooke earned a major boarding penalty and a game misconduct for blasting Boston's Adam McQuaid behind the Bruins net. Forward Chris Kunitz was slapped with an unsportsmanlike conduct penalty after mixing it up with Boston's Rich Peverley and reigning NHL MVP Evgeni Malkin traded punches with Patrice Bergeron at the end of the period. The fight was the fourth of Malkin's seven-year career.

"I think anytime you see Evgeni Malkin fighting he's away from his game," Cooke said. "Emotions are high."

Boston's three goals tied for the most given up by Pittsburgh goalie Tomas Vokoun since he replaced Marc-Andre Fleury in Game 5 of the first round. Bylsma didn't place the blame for Pittsburgh's worst loss of the post-season on Vokoun and doesn't seem intent on switching back to Fleury any time soon.

Game 7 hype heats up in vicious series

NBA playoffs. Off-court distractions continue as decisive finale goes tonight in Miami

As the final horn in a Game 6 loss to the Indiana Pacers was sounding, LeBron James walked toward several of his Miami Heat teammates to shake some hands and share a couple of quick words.

His message was clear: Get ready for Game 7.

Here comes the ultimate game. To the winner, a trip to the NBA Finals. To the loser, an off-season loaded with regret. It's that simple now for the champion Heat and the confident Pacers, who meet in Game 7 of the Eastern Conference finals Monday night in Miami.

"There's two teams that's in this position.... You can't substitute the atmosphere that we're going to be in on Monday night for both teams. We should all cherish this moment," said James.

LeBron James reacts during the second half of the Game 6 loss.

MICHAEL CONROY/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

For the Heat, it's a chance to move into the finals for the third straight year and keep hope alive of winning a second straight title. For the Pacers, it's a chance to cap what would surely go into the books as one of the biggest upsets in NBA playoff history, considering they finished 16 1/2 games behind the Heat in the regular season.

Gay slur

The Pacers had an off-the-court distraction to address Sunday. Centre Roy Hibbert apologized and was fined $75,000 by the NBA after using a gay slur in his postgame comments on Saturday, along with a profanity to describe members of the media.

None of that matters much now. The Pacers have beaten Miami five of nine times this season. They need a sixth.

"It is a closeout game and an elimination game," Pacers coach Frank Vogel said. "Our approach right now is not if we lose we're out — our approach is if we win, we get to the finals."

Horoscopes

Aries

March 21 - April 20

If you have any doubts at all about what you are asked to do today, either by a friend or by someone you work with, just say no. It may make you a bit unpopular but better that than you hate yourself.

Taurus

April 21 - May 21

What are you doing to make the world a better place? As Venus, your ruler, moves into the communications area of your chart today you can do something, even if it's only spreading what you believe.

Gemini

May 22 - June 21

Your rivals may be smart but you are in a different league entirely when it comes to brain power and cunning and will outmaneuver them with ease over the next few days.

Cancer

June 22 - July 23

Venus, planet of emotional and material values, moves into your chart today, making this the ideal time to ask yourself what, and who, is most important in your life.

Leo

July 24 - Aug. 23

If you compromise your principles once today you will have to compromise them again and again throughout the coming week, so start as you mean to go on and refuse to do anything underhand.

Virgo

Aug. 24 - Sept. 23

Not everyone can reach your high standards so try not to be too critical if a friend falls short of expectations. Show them where they went wrong but do so in a friendly way.

Libra

Sept. 24 - Oct. 23

Venus, your ruler, moves into the career area of your chart today, making it easier for you to get along with people in positions of power. Just be careful they don't use you, as you must benefit too.

Scorpio

Oct. 24 - Nov. 22

You always present a resolute face to all, even when you feel fearful and that will help you this week. You're the one everyone goes to when there's serious work to be done.

Sagittarius

Nov. 23 - Dec. 21

Your imagination is active at the moment but watch out you don't go too far by imagining things that don't exist. The line between fact and fiction can often get blurred.

Capricorn

Dec. 22 - Jan. 20

This is a great day for meeting people, especially friends you have not seen in a while or the one you love. Don't linger too long in front of the mirror though!

Aquarius

Jan. 21 - Feb. 19

If you feel that you are being swamped with work then get someone to help you. Yes, of course, no one does as good a job as you but you can't carry on at this pace forever. Slow down.

Pisces

Feb. 20 - March 20

Mercury links well with Neptune, planet of self-sacrifice today, so find ways to help people. You are at your best when giving – and the universe will give back to you.
